Liz Claman, Fox Business Network

Role: Financial news anchor for the Fox Business Network's Countdown to the Closing Bell and Bulls & Bears.

Based: New York City

Days spent on the road: I'm on the road up to four times a month. In one month alone, I had business in Las Vegas, Davos, Switzerland and Washington, D.C. I'm pretty sure Silicon Valley was thrown in there, too.

Street Cred: The University of California, Berkeley alum (who also studied French at the Sorbonne) started her career modestly as a production assistant at a television news station in Los Angeles, but she soon worked her way in front of the camera, climbing from her first reporting job in Columbus, Ohio, through the ranks of cable news. After spending six years at CNBC, Claman jumped to Fox Business Network, where she is now a go-to for high-profile interviews with business titans such as Warren Buffet. When she is not on the road, she lives in New York City with her husband and two children.

“I LOVE VISITING MY HOMETOWN OF BEVERLY HILLS. THE MOMENT I SEE THE PALM TREES AT LAX, I FEEL THE TENSION LEAVE ME.”

• BEST PLACE FOR A GUILTY PLEASURE

Le Bristol, Paris

The room service croissants—soft on the inside, crisp on the outside, butter everywhere. lebristolparis.com

• FAVORITE HOTEL FOR WORK
Hilton, Omaha

The rooms have lots of outlets on the lamp bases for laptops, chargers and tablets. The staff is warm and helpful, and the room service hamburger is pure Omaha beef. Plus, the minibar refrigerators stay cold! hilton.com

• FAVORITE BUSINESS DESTINATION

Davos, Switzerland

I enjoy covering the World Economic Forum in Davos. World and business leaders converge on this tiny ski town for six days to try to come up with solutions to the world's problems. The atmosphere is inspiring, the surroundings, heavenly.

• BEST PLACE FOR A POWER BREAKFAST
Norma's, New York City

For power breakfasts, I like Norma's at Le Parker Meridien on 56th Street. It's low key with great food, and they give you a little smoothie starter. parkermeridien.com

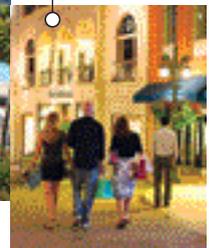

• BEST WEEKEND GETAWAY
Beverly Hills

It's my hometown. The minute I see the palm trees at LAX, I feel the tension leave me.

• FAVORITE PLACE TO TAKE THE FAMILY
Four Seasons Resort Nevis, West Indies

The staff members adore kids, and they have amazing children's activities including a treasure hunt where the kids discover sea turtles and spot golden monkeys running wild on the golf course. The food is wonderful. Have dinner on the beach. fourseasons.com/nevis
